SPECIAL MEN'S CHORUS FORMED FOR MINSTRELS

The North Warren Minstrels being presented March 4 and 5 will again feature a special men's chorus under the direction of Carroll Fowler. It was revealed today. So great was the acclaim given this part of the program last year that it is being repeated by popular demand.

This special chorus will be but a highlight of a diversified and well rounded musical program. The program will also include a regular chorus of 35 voices, both a white-face and a black-face quartette, and four balladists. Accompaniment will be provided by a special ten-piece minstrel band, and with that there'll be plenty of the old-time minstrel flavor, with the funny songs and antics of no less than 8 dusky-complexioned men and the infectious interludes of their interrogating interlocutor.

Tickets for the event are now on sale, and may be obtained at Ritchie's Smoke Shop and Don Finley's in Warren and at Sanden's in North Warren. Seats are not being reserved, but ticket sales will be limited to the number of seats available.

TAYLOR, TURNER CO-STARRING FOR FIRST TIME IN "JOHNNY EAGER"

At the Library Theatre Today and Tuesday

Told with a relentless honesty, given striking dramatic imagery in the direction of Mervyn LeRoy, and offering the best work by far of two of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's greatest box-office attractions—Robert Taylor and Lana Turner—"Johnny Eager" opens Sunday, today, and Tuesday at the Library as the most engrossing portrait of a gangster to reach the screen since the memorable "Little Caesar."

Then there is the work of Van Heflin. Cast as a drunken henchman of Johnny Eager, cynical, sardonic, filled with philosophical reflections, he comes close to stealing the scenes from the stars and makes his character one you will remember long after the picture's fadeout.

There is not a flaw in the entire cast, which includes Edward Arnold in a powerful role as the father of Miss Turner. Robert Sterling as her fiancé, Patricia Dane as the girl cast off by Taylor, Glenda Farrell in a poignant part as a policeman's wife, Henry O'Neill, Diana Lewis and Barry Nelson. "Johnny Eager" may be recommended as absorbing entertainment, filled with suspense, excitement and dramatic power.

Despite an injunction against a set of statewide officers, the Military Order of the Purple Heart met in Harrisburg to discuss national defense and a membership drive, with a national officer presiding.

According to an Associated Press dispatch, the meeting was attended by Donald U. Andrew J. Seagel, of Baltimore, a national junior vice commander, called the meeting and presided. Chapters represented at the meeting were Orders 4, 45 and 88 of Philadelphia; Beaver county, Warren county, Hazleton, Williamsport and Lancaster counties.

Department officials of the American Legion, led by Department Commander I. C. Gordon Foster, arrived in Warren early this morning. They spent a busy day, to be climaxed by the annual George Washington Birthday dinner-dance sponsored by members of Chief Cornplanter Post, No. 135, at 6:30 this evening at the Woman's Club.

Department Commander Foster addressed a joint luncheon meeting of the Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs this noon at the Y. W. C. A. Over 140 members of the three clubs were on hand for the meeting and enjoyed the timely and pertinent observations made by Commander Foster.

Later he was presented at a joint assembly at Warren High school, where he talked to a large group of interested students. Conferences this morning and afternoon with various Legion officers of the local post and county Legion officers and committeemen filled out the rest of a busy day.

TWO DESERTERS BEING RETURNED TO FT. BELVOIR

Two young soldiers who are alleged to have wrecked a stolen automobile near Irvine in their flight from Fort Belvoir, where they escaped from the guardhouse, are being returned to the Virginia camp for prosecution by military authorities. Taken to the Erie county jail following their arrest by Corry officers of the state motor police, they were scheduled to have left yesterday for the camp in custody of officers from Fort Belvoir.

State motor police arrested Kenneth E. Lloyd, of near Spartansburg, and Nick Russian, of Aliquippa, at the home of Lloyd's parents near Spartansburg, where they flew after the crash at Irvine, when their stolen automobile failed to negotiate a sharp curve, left the highway and upset in the ditch.

The stolen car, which was quite badly wrecked, was reported to be the property of Ralph M. Henry, of Reedsville Millin county. It was brought to the Munksgard garage here to await arrival of the owner.

Lloyd was arrested recently at Sheffield, where he was reported to have been acting in a disorderly manner. He was released from the Warren county jail on February 12 when he was returned to Fort Belvoir to answer an AWOL charge. Russian is reported to have been serving a stretch in the guardhouse for a similar offense.

SPRING CREEK YOUTH SUFFERS BROKEN WRISTS

Believed to have been momentarily blinded by the heavy storm which was raging at the time, LaRue Taylor, 11, of Spring Creek, walked off the wing of the bridge over the Brokenstraw creek and was quite seriously injured late Friday afternoon.

Taken to the Corry hospital, the youth was found to have suffered fractures of both wrists and a laceration on the chin. It was first feared that he might have sustained a concussion but examination disclosed that he had escaped any serious head injuries.

Mystery surrounds the exact manner in which the child came to his injuries. His cries were heard by a neighbor, Mrs. John Ricker, son, who investigated and found the boy attempting to climb the steep hillside from the creek. She went for assistance and when she returned, he had reached the top and continued to his home.

It is thought likely that the boy stepped off the bridge wing during the severe storm, which became blinding at times, falling 25 or 30 feet into the creek.

The victim is the son of Mrs. Sadie Taylor, of Spring Creek.

To Present and Prospective Gas Users

War Production Board Order Prohibits New Gas Heating Installations After March 1

This government order, issued February 16, prohibits us from accepting NEW Gas Heating customers but does not affect present customers, or NEW users of Gas for cooking, water heating or refrigeration.

The War Production Board has ordered a curtailment in the consumption of natural gas and mixed natural and manufactured gas. This action was taken to assure adequate supplies of gas for war production and was made necessary by the scarcity of materials that would be required if existing systems were expanded. The present order applies to 17 states in which New York and Pennsylvania are included. The effective date is Mar. 1 but does not affect present uses of existing customers. That is a consumer now using gas to cook or heat water is not restricted in such uses, but he may not install a gas heating system in his home, store, office or factory or convert other heating equipment now using other fuel to gas. This order does not apply to the use of gas in room heaters, such as radiant fires, etc.

PRESENT USERS of GAS for HEATING not affected

The use of gas in houses or other buildings where gas is now used for that purpose is not affected by this order. If you are now using gas to heat your home the order does not apply to you.

Gas Companies in 17 States (including N. Y. and Penna.) are ordered as follows:

1. They are prohibited from delivering gas for heating new homes, stores, factories or other buildings, unless the heating equipment is installed prior to Mar. 1, 1942, or the equipment was specified in the construction contract and the foundation under the main part of the building is completed prior to Mar. 1. This applies to heating systems intended to furnish all or the major part of the heat for a home or building. It does not apply to individual room heaters.

2. They are prohibited from delivering gas for the operation of heating equipment that has been converted from some other fuel to gas, unless such conversion is completed within 10 days after the issuance of this order. Note: The order was dated Feb. 16, 1942.

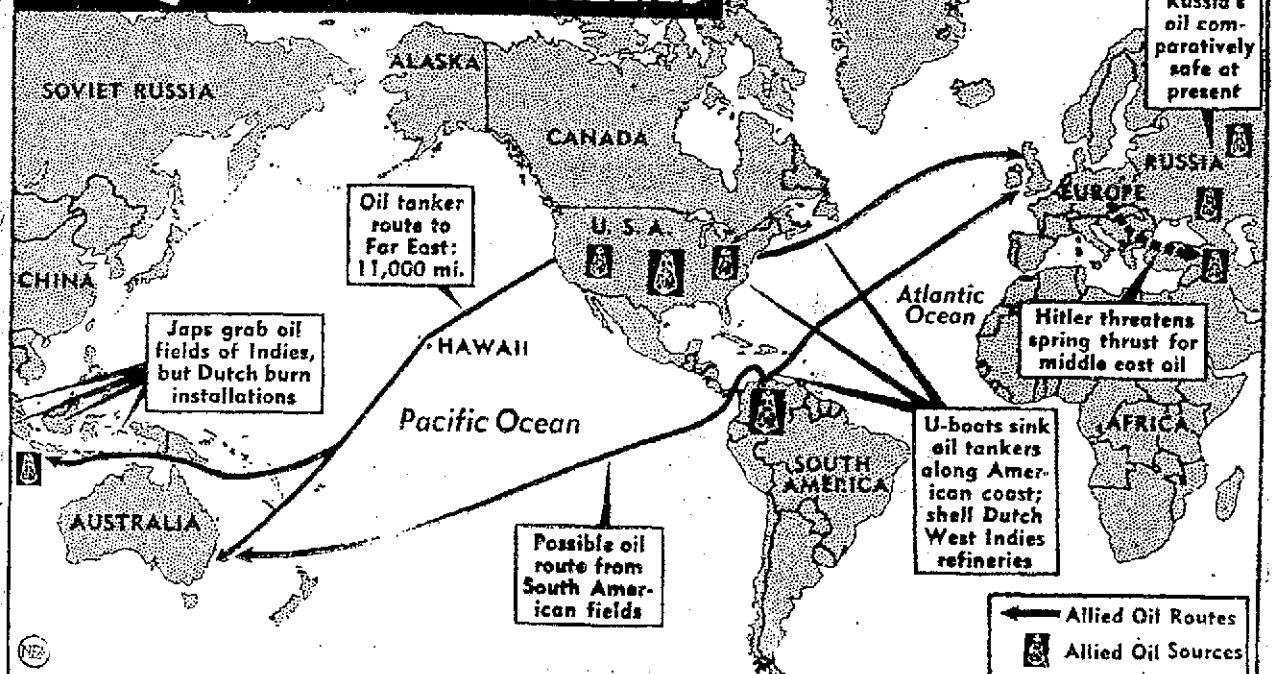

The use of gas, the application for gas service, the setting of meters, the turning on of gas, the connecting of houses and buildings with our lines, continue as at present, except for heating equipment as affected by this order after Mar. 1, 1942 and then only in cases where the heating equipment is installed contrary to the dates, Feb. 26 and Mar. 1, of this order.

THEY HAVE FORGOTTEN PEARL HARBOR

Washington had his sunshine patriots and Lincoln copperheads. Today we have a new and equally obnoxious breed—false front patriots. They erect with out talk and a great fan-fare of activity a magnificent structure of patriotism. But it falls flat with the first breeze because it has a false front.

Specifically these big talkers and small doers noisily buy defense bonds and stamps one day and very quietly cash them the next. Obviously this sort of thing is about as helpful to our war effort as is Hermann Goering.

For instance, the Cleveland postoffice reported defense stamp sales of $274,093 one week but it gave back $75,900 to persons who did not wish to keep these stamps and trade them in on defense bonds. This was a net selling of Uncle Sam, General MacArthur, Admiral Nimitz, and thousands in front line fighting and the millions on the home front of 27 per cent.

Reports of such redemptions, some more and some less, come from other sections of the nation and piled up to a total of $6,646,712 stamp reductions in December. That is enough money to equip a fleet of flying fortresses and slap the Japs with a punch their honorable ancestors would hear.

Some of these stamps undoubtedly were redeemed in bonds. Some persons were forced to cash them because they lost their jobs or suffered other financial jolts.
Nevertheless, the percentage remains too high if we are going to do much about Pearl Harbor other than throw out our chests and predict dire things for the enemy.
Such fair weather patriots not only defeat the purpose of the stamp program—to sharpen the ax for the axis—but they cost the Treasury Department money because stamps turned back must be cancelled. Thus a remendous amount of printing and paper goes down the drain. Furthermore, the redeemers are tossing away the very best investment in the world.

Possibly the Treasury may do something about it. It would be a far better thing, however, if we all would resolve to build and perpetuate our patriotism on solid ground, and issue a sort of moral building code outlawing false fronts.

VICHY VICTORY?

As the tragic comedy that is the so-called war guilt trial at Riom drags on its weary way, there is considerably more at the bar than the defendants accused by Nazi-bossed Vichy of forcing France unprepared into the war.

The mental, moral and military muddling of the Third Republic slouches before the ermine-clad judges.
Complicity of all peoples, including Americans, who saw in Adolf Hitler nothing but a bragging bum stand trial. The "all-for-one-and-that-one's me" attitude faces judgment.

The victor in this trial will not be Vichy, Berlin, Laval, Blum or Daladier. It will be the people who learn from it that you have to be ready to fight to keep peace.

LENTEN SERMONETTE

LUKEWARMNESS!

Dr. J. H. Clemens, Retired Methodist Minister

The ancient Church of Laodicea, seems quite modern. Lukewarmness is poised between two extremes of feeling, a state that is neither hot nor cold. They had been baptized with the Holy Spirit and with the word of life. Now the sacred fire was languishing and dying. The causes for this condition are many and complex. "You declare, I am rich, I am ill off, I lack nothing." Covetousness is quite common. Jesus said, the devil is the father of lies, the father of the good seed. The fire on the altar needs constant feeding. Bible study, prayer, public worship, and service are the fuel. Luke-warmness is worse than uselessness. The writer says, you are a miserable creature, pitiful, poor, blind and naked. It is this lukewarmness, not lukewarmness, that makes converts. In secular profession men are not lukewarm. Satan is not lukewarm. Communists and Nazis are enthusiastic.

What an affront lukewarmness is to our Christ. Think of the He lived, beginning with His forty days of temptation in the wilderness. His fervor, his zeal. He amazed his own family, we read; His enemies and brethren were alarmed for they said, "He is beside himself." His enemies said, "He hath a devil and is mad." Himself said, that His mission was to set the earth on fire. In Gethsemane He sweat drops of blood, and on the cross He endured the contradiction of sinners. In the face of this shall we be indifferent? To be lukewarm is to insult Christ. Opposition He could respect; weakness he could condone; to understand prodigals He would give the kiss of welcome. But the lukewarm, His soul with loathing rejects. Hot water is stimulating; cold water is refreshing, but tepid water is nauseating. "So because you are lukewarm, neither hot nor cold, I am about to spit you out of my mouth." The cure. Be earnest and repent. "Behold I stand at door and knock." Let Him in and He will cause your heart again burn within you. He is our Promethee, who fetches fire from heaven. Meditate on what He has done for you and your heart will burn within you. Fervency of spirit will come and you will be ablaze for the Master.

EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, Feb. 13.—Whether you realize it or not and whether it means anything to you or not, organized labor in Washington has become one of the most potent forces in the capital. Labor is now so influential that it has maneu-vered itself to the business end of a pipeline right to the President which, in the words of C. I. O.
President Philip Murray, "permits the labor groups to acquire direct contact with the White House on all matters pertaining to labor work in the war effort."

Vehicle for this direct communication is the Combined Labor War Board of A. F. of L. and C. I. O. representatives. The name was chosen by the President, who has paid tribute to the committee by saying it was the kind of group which could sit around a table, take off their coats, call each other by their first names and discuss things over. Murray has declared that the President suggested the committee was created to consult with him periodically on "all matters" concerning labor's participation in the war.

The "all matters" Murray assumes to include living standards, housing, legislative standards, labor unity, and a greater degree of participation in the administration of all matters pertaining to the conduct of the war. "I think this is the greatest victory that labor has achieved since the beginning of the defense effort," says Murray, who has therefore renamed it
"Labor's Victory Board."

Labor leaders are not the only ones who boast of their new power. Washington representatives of some of the big industries pay tribute to the labor lobby, saying privately that it is too smart, that it has not made a single mistake in tactics since the defense effort began. Disruption of the old OPM and the first mediation board are pointed to as evidence of the lobby's power.

If that's true in any degree, there may be some point in trying to enumerate some of the objectives of the labor movement in this war effort. There is no official list of aims, but there is as yet no real A. F. of L.-C. I. O. unity. But day after day the labor headquarters in Washington put out their statements of approval on these measures of Congress or administrative orders—or their disapproval—and from these statements and from the resolutions of executive board meetings a fairly clear picture can be drawn.

At the head of the list labor leaders put "union security." This is in reality a broad term for the closed shop or the union shop and the maintenance of the national labor relations act, wages and hour law, and all the other federal legislation now on the books to protect trade union practices, including the 40-hour week and extra overtime compensation.

Second is a drive for increased wages and opposition to all forms of wage freezing for duration of the war. This objective is stated as maintenance of the "living standards of the workers." Threatened by the spiraling cost of living and increased taxes on low income groups, but it is simply a national policy of demanding substantial wage increases in all negotiations.
A. F. of L. has gone further to suggest automatic increases as living costs rise.

On the war production program, labor can be counted upon to ask for more authority. Labor leaders say they are not interested in having a share of management as such, but this is stated largely to counter claims of management that labor should not "interfere" in management because labor doesn't know anything about management.

Labor resolutions state this aim behind a lot of words in asking for "labor participation in the production of the war by affording labor direct representation and complete participation within the administrative machinery responsible for obtaining the production of munitions of war." What this means is more of the Murray industry plan, more Reuther plans for every war industry.

Elimination of north-south wage differentials, having been won in the coal industry and started in the aluminum industry, will be pushed wherever the unions think they're strong enough to put it over. And on the same basis, there will be increasing demands for uniform wage scales within whole industries on a broader basis, to eliminate competition for labor between plants.

On the legislative front, the labor lobbyists think they have side-

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Musical comedies are funny things. . . . They cost a lot of money. . . . They always represent a gamble.
Sometimes they become hits, and everybody is happy. . . . Invariably, even before they become hits, they represent weary months of conferences and arguments, of interchanging ideas, of editing and re-editing, of hiring and firing, of long, tedious, endless rehearsal periods in empty theaters and halls.

Let's take up one now in progress, and see how it works. Three men are most vitally concerned.
They are George Marion, Jr., George Abbott and Johnny Green.

MARION is a theatrical writer, a Hollywood writer, a Broadway writer. He wrote a short story called "Yours For a Year."
When Abbott saw it, he wanted it, and he bought it. Abbott is a very hep guy. He's very music conscious. He's a crack rumba dancer. He knows bands. He knows musical comedies. He is perhaps the most successful producer on Broadway.

It should be added that what he liked best about Marion's story was this fact: It was the story of a band leader who had a successful band, and of what he went through to keep that band successful.

"This," said Abbott, "ought to make a crack musical comedy."
But you can't have a musical comedy without music, and that's where Johnny Green comes in.
Green is a composer, an arranger, a pianist, a conductor. That he majored in economics at Harvard and began life as a banking clerk in N.Y. has no bearing on this story. He likes music; that's why he has made it his career.

And so every day the three—Marion, Abbott and Green, go into a huddle. They talk about the story, the plot, the settings. They edit and rewrite. They discuss the score, the tempo, the mood, the songs. Then Johnny Green goes back to his home and writes the music.

HOW much music is needed for a musical comedy? More than you know. A musical comedy such as "Yours For a Year" will have about 20 musical "spots." This means there'll be about 15 pieces of music. Six of these will be publishable songs.
Six or thereabouts will be choral numbers, group numbers. There must also be background music and filler music. Music is tailored to a show, just as your overcoat is tailored.

In addition to these chores,
Green is conducting the orchestra for the newest Rodgers and Hart musical comedy, a musical version of "The Warrior's Husband."
He is also an officer in the New York Guard, attached to general headquarters. His wife, Betty Furness, is touring the east in a company of "My Sister Eileen."

Why does a man who lives music study economics in college and begin life as a bank clerk? Johnny's dad was unsympathetic to music as a career. He wasn't very happy at Harvard, and he was bored in Wall Street.

So Johnny went back to his first love. Ten years ago he went to the coast to do background music for Paramount pictures. That first film was Claudette Colbert's "Secrets of a Secretary." He also composed the music for "The Foghorn Leghorn" while Fred sold fast automobiles by radio.
While there he met Betty Furness, who became his wife.

Since then it has all been Betty, Barbara, and music. Wall Street has had to shift for itself.

A WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—This war is a bigger pain in the neck to the Weather Bureau than it is to most government departments.
You'd think, since the bureau no longer has to band the public more than a little quickie 12-hour forecast (the regular daily forecasts used to be for 26 hours) and doesn't go in any more trying to put out those "long-rangers" that it could take this war easy.

JUST the reverse is true. The Weather Bureau's troubles started a long time back when exchange weather information from continental Europe and other places was blacked out. But those were halcyon days compared to what Chief Francis W. Reichelderfer's boys are up against now.

In the first place, the Navy from Iceland to Singapore counts heavily on the weather forecasts.
The bomber ferry services from Australia to Cairo depend upon them. And from Alaska to Pensacola, the air training schools and military air bases need weather as it was never needed before.

When armies and navies go out to battle these days, the weather is almost as important a factor as the supply lines or whether the powder magazines are stocked. Hitler has proved that more than once and perhaps at last is his own undoing.

But all of this wouldn't make so much difference. The United States' meteorologists are tops, can handle that added responsibility.

What does make a difference is that WITHOUT making the weather forecast public, the weather bureau has to take care of the scores of civilian industries and activities that are keyed to the winds and the rains and the snows.

WHAT would happen to power or telephone or telegraph companies, if they could not hold their line crews in readiness to repair the damage done by a howling winter blizzard or a spring flood? What would happen to transportation companies if they had no warning that the elements were going to blow their schedules to pieces? What would happen to water supplies and dams and aqueducts if the cloud-bursts were permitted to fall without an advance word of the onslaught?

The weather bureau has gotten around these problems—but what a job they are "advising" the affected companies. They don't give them the weather forecast, they just advise what precautions it might be well to take.

That means that where newspapers and radio used to carry the news to all, the weather bureau now has to treat with each individually and be positive that only known persons get that "advice."

World Prayer Day Locally Observed By Church Council

The 20th annual observance of the World Day of Prayer by the Federated Missionary Societies of Warren was held in the First Evangelical church Friday, February 20, at 2:30. One hundred and fifty women, representing fifteen of Warren's churches, participated in the significant and inspiring service.

The program theme "I Am the Way" was carried out under the several divisions: The Way Men Have Lost; the Way Back to God; the Way of Self-surrender; the Way of Peace; the Way of Love; the Way of Light; and the Way of Power. Mrs. W. L. Arnold, chairman of the observance, led in the program theme. Mrs. Guy McCloskey outlined the commemoration and significance of the day in years past. Others participating in the elaboration of the theme by means of the "Ways" mentioned above were: Mrs. Carl Peterson and Mrs. J. C. Wygant of the Evangelical church; Mrs. L. E. Nasson, Mrs. Mabel Mariette, Mrs. Lyle Shearer, Mrs. D. E. Callahan, Mrs. Frank Collins and Mrs. S. B. Caldwell of the United Brethren church; Mrs. W. R. Carlin and Mrs. O. A. Pressel of the First Presbyterian church. The solo numbers of the program were rendered by Mrs. Edwin Jack and Mrs. Marcus Naylor.

The offering presentation was dramatized to show the four interdenominational avenues of service in which Christian women around the world participate as they follow Him in "The Way" through the World Day of Prayer gifts of money. Mrs. Foster Maze represented "The Migrants"; Mrs. Ralph Sires "Christian Literature"; Mrs. Watson Jamieson "Union Christian Colleges"; Mrs. Caldwell "Indian Students in U. S. Government Schools"; Mrs. Charles F. Sill presented in brief review these four avenues of service supported by the offerings of the day. Mrs. Jack, with Mrs. Paul Mathis, accompanist, contributed the hymn "Oh, Master Let Me Walk With Thee" as a solo to this part of the program.

At the business meeting preceding the service proper, it was decided to hold the 1943 World Day of Prayer in the Grace Methodist church. Mrs. L. E. Nason, chairman of the Interdenominational Mission Study Group, called attention to a change in place of next meeting, the March session to be held the 6th in Trinity Memorial Episcopal church instead of the North Warren Presbyterian church as indicated on the printed program.

Action-Ready for Blackouts

Typical of the action-ready items prominent in spring fashions is this two-in-one blackout bag designed by Frilo. It's slung over the shoulder in order to free both arms for action. Papers and customary personal things go into one compartment which closes with a zipper. A fitted tray that slides out of a second compartment, with only a flap to lift in order to get at it, holds first aid bandage and anti-septic, identification card and flashlight. Corduroy and felt make the pocketbook which comes in many colors.

Is Your Child Profiting from Modern Preventive and Corrective MEDICAL KNOWLEDGE?

Modern preventive and curative medicine makes it absolutely unnecessary for the child of today to suffer some of the hazards and ills that he could not escape a few years ago. It is unnecessary for a child to have diphtheria, smallpox, typhoid fever—and you probably know that bad tonsils and infected throats and generally undernourished bodies are more susceptible to colds, scarlet fever and tuberculosis.

That racking disease, whooping cough, can be cut down or prevented by serum. Many grown-ups of today are afflicted with bow-legs, bad posture, deafness, or some chronic disease, from lack of correct diet in childhood—or from some of those diseases "every child had to have."

For the sake of the child's future life and health, keep in touch periodically with your physician. The discouraged mother of the backward child may find that lazy glands, defective eyesight or some other physical disability is the cause of his dullness.

Your child will repay early care and physical supervision with better health, enhanced personality, self-confidence and assurance.

16 Lose Lives When Towboat Strikes a Pier

connects Cincinnati and northern Kentucky.
Most of the victims—believed to be 13 men and three women—were asleep in their crew bunks when the Ohio River Company's 170-foot boat crashed as it was towing four loaded coal barges and a fuel flat. "She went down just about as fast as it takes you to climb from the first to the second floor," said Ernest Easter, 37-year-old deckhand from Buena Vista, O.

Saved with Easter were George Harrison, 28, also of Buena Vista; Raleigh W. Hincman, 35, engineer, of Huntington, W. Va.; George Woomer, 30, engineer, of Henderson, W. Va., and John W. Cain, 18, deck hand, of North Kenova, O.

The McBride was backing off when she hit the pier broadside. "The first crash was rather light," Hincman said, "then someone gave the distress whistle and the captain said: 'My God, boys, there is something wrong—this is serious' and ran from the table. I ran from the kitchen and heard one of the ladies say: 'It's a-sinking boys, get out if you can.'"

"I ran to the back of the boat x x x and climbed out in water up to my waist on the other side." Investigations of the accident will be made by the company, a coast guard captain, an FBI agent and a representative of the Bureau of Marine Inspection.

India's Hopes For Freedom Are Abolished

The farewell of Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, who has been visiting in India, speaking presumably with the consent of Britain and the United States and apparently addressing himself to the British, he declared dramatically Saturday:

"The vast majority of the world's opinion is in full sympathy with India's aspiration for freedom."

2. Informed British sources asserted yesterday that Prime Minister Churchill planned to enlarge India's powers of self-government and send a cabinet representative there to try to "put the India problem on a more satisfactory footing."

There was as yet no precise indication of how far Britain would go toward granting autonomy, but the government was said to be planning tentatively for an Indian national administration headed by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former president of the nationalist congress party in which Mohandas K. Gandhi has been the guiding spirit.

The all-India Moslem League's working committee was called to a special meeting today, and a conference of Indian leaders outside the two great political parties yesterday voted support for Chiang.

The latest registrants, however, will be placed at the end of the existing local draft lists, and will not be subject to call until the local boards reach the end of their existing lists.

"Such publication," he said, "will not reveal exactly the total number of registrants enrolled throughout the nation in the February registration—information which is still restricted by the war department."

RELIEF ROLLS HIT LOW POINT IN PAST YEAR

Warren county followed the rest of the state as booming war factories brought 1941 Pennsylvania relief rolls to the lowest point since statewide relief was organized almost a decade ago. Information concerning the state assistance program was reported to Governor James today by Secretary Howard L. Russell of the Department of Public Assistance.

"By December of last year," Russell said, "the average number of men, women and children dependent on state public assistance or WPA dropped to 640,000, as compared with 1,099,000 in December of 1940, 1,817,000 in February of 1939, and over 2,000,000 at the all-time depression peak in May, 1933.

"During the first few months of 1941 the moderate downward trend showed no slackening as initial increases in employment in defense industries more than offset employment losses in other lines."

Responsible, he asserted, were completion of tooling up processes in many industries, heavy anticipatory buying, the usual seasonal upswing in agricultural employment and WPA layoffs.

"Throughout the remaining months of the year, the decline continued without interruption although at a somewhat reduced rate," Russell said.

Total expenditures for the year amounted to $103,940,000 in state and federal funds, one-fourth of which was federal. The year's outlay was the lowest since the early 1930's, except for 1936 when WPA activity was at a peak. State expenditures were less than in any year since 1939. In 1941 the state spent $37,850,000 for general assistance, compared to $102,224,000 in 1940.

The year began with 1,093,000 persons on state public assistance rolls and closed with 640,000.

The extent of recovery, Russell pointed out, was not uniform throughout the state. The ratio of dependent to total population ranged from 1.9 per cent in Montgomery county in the Philadelphia suburban area, to 13.2 per cent in Lackawanna county. The great majority of the counties had dependency rates of less than nine per cent.

During the year 133,210 persons received general assistance, 101,458 obtained food assistance, 194,935 aid to dependent children and 13,854 receiving blind pensions. In addition an average of about 208,000 persons were wholly or partially dependent on WPA wages.

A Bureau of Mines first-aid or mine rescue certificate is also required. A written general test will be given. Applicants must be between 25 and 35 years old. Applications must be received not later than March 30, 1942.

An examination for Inspector of Hulls and for Inspector of Boilers has also been announced. The positions are in the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation in the Department of Commerce, and pay $3,200 a year. There are three classes of service—seaboard, Great Lakes and central western river ports. Applicants must have had appropriate experience on vessels in the class in which appointment is sought and must also possess a master's or chief engineer's license at the time of making application. The age limit is 45 years. There will be no written test. Applications will be accepted until further notice.

REGULATION ON CASH LENDING TO BE ALTERED

Steadily increasing stringency of terms for all types of installment buying and cash lending is contemplated by the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, according to word just received from Washington by William E. Yeager, Treasurer of the Community Consumer Discount Company.

Ronald Ransom, vice chairman of the board and in charge of its regulation of consumer credit, has indicated that despite priorities, allocations and freezing orders the board expects to tighten up terms on installment selling and personal financing until the aggregate volume has been decreased substantially. Installment sales alone amounted to $8,000,000,000 in 1941, a gain of 40% over 1939.

Regulation "V" issued last August by the Federal Reserve Board now affects the transactions of all banks with installment loan departments; all other financial institutions making loans of $1500 or less, repayable in installments, and all merchants selling furniture, household appliances and many other items on installment plans. Jewelry, clothing and some other articles are not yet included, but the board has indicated that they will be regulated if necessary to help the war effort.

Canada included charge accounts recently in its regulation of consumer credit by requiring payment in full of all such accounts within ten days after the first of the month following date of purchase. A similar plan is being weighed by the Federal Reserve Board according to reliable information received by Mr. Yeager.

Originally, a limitation of 18 months was placed on most installment loans and installment sales, but down payment requirements have been increased and maximum time shortened. This trend is likely to continue, in order to serve as a curb against inflation and to make more excess funds of consumers available for defense bonds.

The U. S. produces a third of the world's iron ore, more than 40 per cent of its iron and steel, 25 per cent of its coal, and two-thirds of its oil. We mine 37 per cent of its copper, 29 per cent of the zinc, and 24 per cent of the lead in the world.

Nations aiding America in providing raw materials include Canada, which provides nickel; Chile, copper; Brazil, quartz crystals; Argentina, hides; Bolivia, tin ore; Dutch Guiana, bauxite; Mexico, mercury.

MANY EXPECTED TO ATTEND "Y" DINNER TUESDAY

With reservations scheduled to close today, it is expected that between 175 and 200 persons will attend the 24th annual father and son banquet of the Warren Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

The speaker will be Capt. E. A. Goff, Jr., of Pittsburgh, supervising inspector for the Civilian Aeronautics Authority. He has headquarters at the Allegheny county airport.

Bill Clinger, a member of the board of the Boys' Magic Club, will be the toastmaster. Song leader will be Harold (Bud) Carden, with Mrs. Warren Carlin as pianist.

The toast to the fathers will be given by Charles Sires, and the toast to the sons will be given by Don Mowell. A trombone solo will be given by Ray Marti.

It was pointed out today that membership in the Y. M. C. A. is not necessary to attend the banquet. It was also stated that men not having sons of their own may "adopt" a boy for the evening who might not otherwise have an opportunity to attend.

Mr. Goff, the speaker, is one of the best known and best liked authorities on aviation in this section. He has flown airplanes ever since the time of the bamboo and orange crate planes. A captain in the American air force, Mr. Goff is the highest authority in civilian aeronautics in western Pennsylvania. He has been in this district for about five years and has been largely instrumental in building aviation in this district up to the efficiency it has reached.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

No. 38

Bad Debts—Method of Deduction

Bad debts constitute a considerable item in the returns of many taxpayers and may be treated in one of two ways—either by deduction from gross income in respect to debts ascertained to be worthless either in whole or in part and charged off, or by a deduction of a reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts. Taxpayers were given an option for 1921 to select either of the two methods. The method used in the return for 1921 must be used in returns for subsequent years unless permission is granted by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to change to the other method. Application to change must be made at least 30 days prior to the close of the taxable year for which the change is to be effective. However, a taxpayer filing a first return for 1941 may select either of the two methods, subject to the approval of the Commissioner upon examination of the return. Permission to adopt the reserve method is limited to taxpayers having a large number of accounts whose credit is extended over a considerable period of time. It is not granted for the purpose of handling one specific debt.

What constitutes a "reasonable addition" to a reserve for bad debts must be determined in the light of the facts, and will vary with conditions of business prosperity. It will depend primarily upon the total amount of debts outstanding as of the close of the taxable year, those arising currently as well as those arising in prior taxable years, and the total amount of the existing reserve. In case subsequent realizations upon outstanding debts prove to be more or less than estimated at the time of the creation of the existing reserve, the amount of the excess or inadequacy in the existing reserve should be reflected in the determination of the reasonable addition necessary in the taxable year. A taxpayer using the reserve method should show in his return the volume of charge sales (or other business transactions) for the year, and the percentage of the reserve to such amount, the total amount of notes and ac-

BY DANGEROUS BAGGAGE ELEANOR ATTERBURY

Chapter 23

One Mystery More

BLINDFOLDED, gagged, and bound and racing through the city streets as if speed laws didn't exist, it couldn't possibly be really happening, Sharon thought wildly. It was too absurdly melodramatic. But she tried vainly to free her hands, it was happening.

Could it have been this about which the Countess had warned her, she thought, trying to brace herself against the car's wild lurching. Or was it some scheme evolved by the Countess herself to get Sharon out of her way? And what had they done with Tom? Slipping across the wide seat she made sure that she was the only "passenger." She was alone—with some madman at the wheel.

The car slowed now with a high whistle of brakes and turned sharply. A sharp jolt and then the sound of a gate clanging shut behind them. The car stopped so abruptly Sharon was thrown forward onto her knees. Someone opened the door, lifted her out.

"Sorry we had to handle you so roughly, Sharon."

It was Harvey Goodwin himself. He unfastened the gag, pulled off the blindfold.

For a moment Sharon blinked at him, trying to focus her eyes and her thoughts. Then she glanced at the wrists, rubbed red by the handcuffs, and indignation came to a boil within her.

"What in the name of heaven did you think you were doing?" she demanded furiously.

Goodwin opened the door to the plant office, snapped on a light, motioned her inside.

When he'd closed the door, he said quietly, "I am sorry to have had to take such rough measures. I had to get Tom Stafford out of the way. And he didn't know you were an accomplice."

"Oh!" Sharon rubbed her wrists. "Well, why didn't you tell me?"

"Because I wanted you to react quite naturally," he smiled. "And you did! I'm sure Pavlo has some interesting shins."

"Pavlo?"

"Pavlo is driving the car that is taking Tom to a safe place," Goodwin explained, grimly. "Pavlo will see that he is put to sleep for a few hours. And when young Tom wakes up again, he'll be back in my guest room and never know the awful truth. He has no idea that he's a nasty hangover! That takes care of the opposition—for tonight."

Maybe, Sharon amended silently. Tom may have been "high" enough to put on a good act. But he hadn't been drunk. Tom was too smart for that. Furthermore, he would certainly remember that scene on the terrace—hangover or not! But, and she shrugged away from all that, that was tomorrow's problem and it would have to wait until then. Right now, there was too much else to worry about.

Grim Errand
"HERE, put this on," Mr. Goodwin ordered, handing her a flannel-lined raincoat. "You are driving the second truck. Just follow me. It's after eleven now so we'll have to hurry."

She struggled into the oversized coat, turned back the sleeves so that her hands were free. Pulled a man's cap over her head. "And better take this—just in case," Goodwin handed her the ugly little automatic he had carried on the trip to Half Moon. Sharon drew back. "No, thanks. I'm more afraid of that than I would be of a hold-up."

"Take it," he insisted curtly. "And use it if you have to. Snap this release," he showed her, "and then pull the trigger. Aim low."

With a dread, Sharon felt the slip the trigger into the big side pocket of the raincoat.

"All set?" he asked a moment later. Sharon could only nod.

They crossed the darkened yard toward the looming shadows of two big trucks. Someone climbed down from the cab of one as they approached.

"Everything all right?" Goodwin demanded sharply. "Yes, boss."

"Good." Then to Sharon. "Up you go."

She scrambled into the cab, clutched the big wheel with cold, trembling hands. The engine was already growling quietly. She waited until the truck ahead moved toward the gate. Then she released the brake, slipped the gear, felt the big heavy monster under her take hold, move forward as they were off.

The plant in the southern part of the city, was some four miles from the warehouse on the docks. To Sharon, that night it seemed forty. Goodwin led the way by circuitous back streets, little-travelled, but poorly lit. And the fog which had been pouring in from the ocean, curtained the streets ahead. Fervidly, the tall, darkened buildings lining the streets loomed suddenly out of the fog, followed their passing with hollow, muffled echoes. Occasionally a traffic signal light blinked warningly. And from out on the bay, fog horns wailed like lost souls.

Numb with cold and with a fear that chilled her even more than the dank fog, Sharon kept her eyes fastened on the truck ahead and prayed for sheer physical courage to see this through. Finally, the big lumbering truck Goodwin drove turned into the Embarcadero. Clear out to the end and then finally into the yawning opening of a warehouse. Sharon pulled on the wheel, slowed cautiously as the truck ahead disappeared in the cavern of darkness.

"Douse those lights," a gruff command shouted at her as she pulled in.

Obediently, she snapped the switch and felt as if the darkness had pounced down at her. She jerked the truck to a dead stop.

"That's good. I'll take it from here." The same strange voice.

Her eyes still unaccustomed to the dark, she fumbled her way out of the truck's cab, stepped down onto the cold cement floor.

Then Goodwin spoke just beside her. "That's all for now. You can wait outside. The truck will be ready to take back in about half an hour. Let us know if you see any suspicious loiterers. Got it?"

"Yes," Sharon didn't wait for any more. Only too glad to be out of that black cave, she went out onto the street.

Deserted, almost completely blacked out, the docks street, like hulking, black monsters of the night, stood before her.

Down the street, a lone night watchman prowled, his flashlight tracing long, ghostly fingers up the walls of the huge building. And the rest of the street beyond, shrouded in white fog.

Sharon shivered uncontrollably, saw her own breath make a little plume of smoke in the cold air. She walked the length of the building and back, briskly, trying to rouse the circulation in her chilled body.

Something Wrong!
BACK at the great doorway

again, she was surprised to find the door only the small door marked "Office."

Locked. Opening inside, Sharon found herself in a small, dimly lit room, crammed with filing cases, an old-fashioned roll-top desk. A door opposite her opened into the warehouse. Pursuing the sound of voices beyond, she crossed the time fence, peered into the gloom beyond.

Mountainous piles of sacks on either side of the huge building. Row after row disappearing into the darkness as if there were no end. Sacks of what, she wondered idly. Then she heard Goodwin's voice.

"Put our cases on the bottom. The wheat on top. And pack them tight so they won't roll," he told someone sharply. "Remember, these have got a long way to go."

Long? To Los Angeles? She couldn't not think that a few hours' slowest kind of freighter would then another word snatched her attention. Wheat!

Her curiosity roused, Sharon stepped out of the light of the narrow doorway, into the gloom, walked close to the sound of Goodwin's voice.

"But look, boss, if they count these bags—"

"They won't," Goodwin interrupted. "Just do as I tell you. And make it snappy. Be sure you keep track of the code numbers. Now move."

Where now of the many figures moving through the darkness, Sharon watched, fascinated. Silhouetted by the faint reflection of light from the bay, men passing to and fro through the side-opening of the warehouse were plainly visible. And the superstructure of the small boat tied at the dock there. The burden each man carried made him grotesque, shapen when, in the instant he moved up the gang-plank, Sharon could see him.

They worked at top speed. Staggering up the gang plank, the small boat load returning to the turn, to the gradually diminishing stack of boxes.

Finally one of the men drew near enough Goodwin—and, unknowingly, Sharon—to say, "We've got the steel aboard, sir. Shall we start loading that?"

"Right. Are the gas tanks full?" "Yes, sir."

"We'll pull out in fifteen minutes, then."

"Aye, sir."

Goodwin spun on his heel then, walked directly toward where Sharon stood concealed in darkness. Before she could step out of his way, he had bumped squarely into her. He grabbed her instantly.

"Who is it?" "It's I—Sharon," wincing under the cruel grasp of his fingers.

He released her, but thought told you to stand outside? What are you doing in here?"

"Just watching."

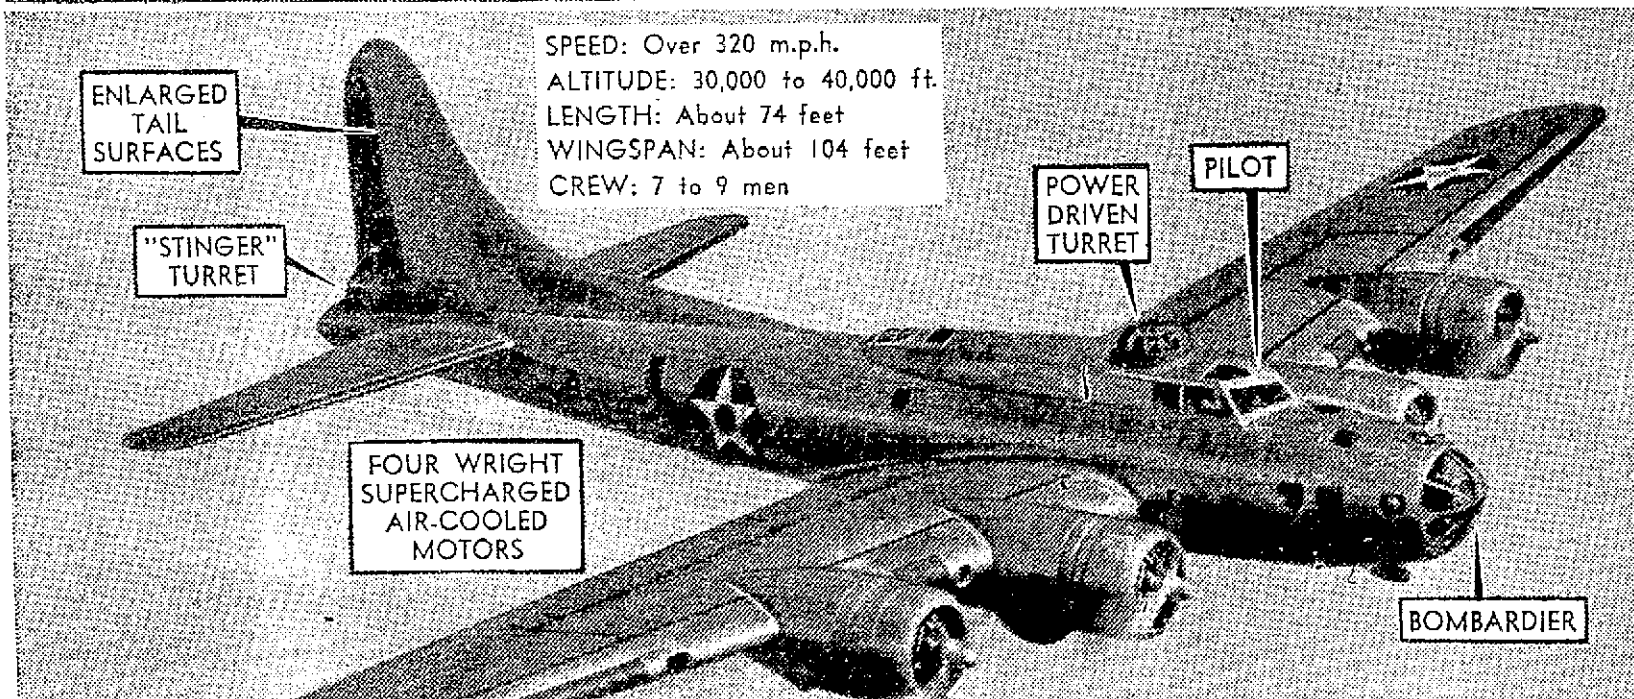

"Do your watching outside, then,"—curtly. "I'm depending on you to warn me if anyone shows up."

Without replying, but stinging under the sharp rebuke, Sharon fled back through the office to the damp, cold street outside. There she paced slowly to keep from freezing, she tried to organize her impressions.

Something told her there was much about tonight's strange developments that she did not understand. Too much. The violence, the secrecy, the strange commands in the dark—steel, and the wheat on top of it. What wheat? And why "code numbers?"

TIRE ALLOTMENT ANNOUNCED FOR WARREN COUNTY

Rationing boards of Warren county have been authorized to issue certificates during March for the sale of 125 tires and 130 tubes for cars and trucks, as well as for the retreading of 39 truck tires, according to information received today.

The March quota for the two local boards includes 34 tires and 35 tubes for passenger cars and light trucks, as well as 91 tires and 102 tubes for trucks.

State rationing officials said truck owners ineligible for new tires under the war rationing program may file applications, starting today, for retreaded or recapped tires, but passenger car drivers will be unable to obtain retreads until further notice.

In view of the announcement from Harrisburg, members of the local boards said they would start at once accepting applications for retreads from truck owners.

In this connection, the local boards received a telegram from Harrisburg stating that the national rationing officials in Washington are concerned about the reported sale of retreads by dealers after the February 18 deadline.

The local boards were asked to call the attention of all tire dealers that no retreads or recapped tires may be released to anyone unless a certificate from the tire rationing boards is presented.

The state rationing director, T. Elmer Transeau, announced that Pennsylvania's March quota of tires and tubes has been fixed at 56,390, including retreaded tires. The allotment consists of 6,684 passenger car tires and 5,594 tubes; 17,270 truck tires, 7,438 truck retreads and 19,410 truck tubes.

Transeau earlier announced February county quotas for truck retreads. Federal authorities had notified him that 5,144 was the maximum number of certificates for retreading that Pennsylvania's 422 local rationing boards could issue truck owners.

Warren county's two boards were authorized to issue certificates for 26 retreads during the balance of this month.

From now on, it was pointed out, no owners of trucks, buses or other heavy vehicles will be able to obtain new tire purchase certificates unless local boards are satisfied that the worn tires of the vehicles cannot be retreaded.

LOCAL BOARDS TO TAKE OVER RATIONING PLAN

Pennsylvania's local rationing boards will take over the coming sugar rationing plan shortly after some 60,000 Pennsylvania school teachers distribute ration books to every man, woman and child in the commonwealth, it was announced today by T. Elmer Transeau, state rationing director.

According to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg, Dr. Francis B. Haas, superintendent of public instruction, who named Dr. Carl D. Mornewick, chief of the department's child accounting and research, as coordinator for the plan said that he had no idea of how long teachers' participation in the plan would last.

Transeau said teachers' help was requested for four evenings a week as a means of reaching every resident of the state as quickly as possible, but that the boards later would take over.

The educators have been asked to list every elementary school in Pennsylvania and to estimate the number of ration books necessary to supply every resident. This work already has been started at the office of the Warren county superintendent of schools.

Exact methods of distributing the books will be announced later, it was stated by Transeau.
